Use a word processor as Microsoft Word
The use of a Word Processor will probably be the easiest way to insert accents with the text, not just for compositions, but also for electronic messages you can type and then paste in the CubBoard. (You should also take advantage of the spell check of your Word Processor)
ç ã]Se you have installed a French dictionary, it will control and correct your answers with your spelling). Microsoft Word will allow you to enter characters with accents by clicking Insert-imbolo. Even better, however, are the keyboard shortcuts available from Word 97:
Á]Á ©: Press Ctrl and type á à â ã ä å æ »(apostrophe). Release both keys and type Á «andÁ». Á] Á]1-Á]1: Press Ctrl and type Á «Á» Button (left side, at the top of the keyboard). Release both keys and type á à â ã ä å ¢ ". Á ¢ á ¢ ", or á ¢ ¢ Á]Á ¢ -Á]Á-Á]Á-Á]Á »-Á]Á »-Á]1" -Á]1á "4: Press CTRL, SHIFT and type Á«: Á »Button. Release both keys and type á à â ã ä å ¢ ". It's " " I ", or á ¢ œ. Á ... ': Press CTRL, SHIFT and type the á «&. Á» Release both keys and type «O.Á» Using extended ASCII characters if you need to write a message directly to the Columbia electronic notice board, for example if you are Find in a public terminal that does not have a Word Processor, you will need to use extended ASCII codes to insert accents. (You can use extended ASCII codes in a word processor as Microsoft Word, but they are more complicated than Word codes). These characters are generated by holding down the «Alt» key and typing a three-digit numeric code with the numeric keypad located on the right side of the keyboard. Furthermore, Windows also uses a further key sequence system to insert these ASCII characters, which uses «Alt» plus a four-digit numeric code. In a Windows application, both codes can be used. For example, typing alt + 130 or alt + 0233 you get á à â ã ä å © Á Á ": Á]Á ¢: alt + 131 or 0226 Á]Á alt + 133 or 0224 Á]Á»: alt + 132 or 0228 Á]Á]: alt + 135 or 0231 Á]Á ©: alt + 130 or 0233 Á]Á: alt + 138 or 0233 Á]Á: alt + 136 or 0234 Á]Á »: alt + 137 or 0235 á]Á©: alt + 140 or 0238 Á]1": alt + 139 or 0239 Á]": alt + 147 or 0244 Á]1: alt + 151 or 0249 Á]Á»: alt + 150 or 0251Á]1 "4: alt + 129 or 0252 Á ... ': alt + 0157 for a complete table of ASCII codes, see www.ascitable.com; For a table of extended ASCII codes for Windows, see Using an integrated keyboard you can change the keyboard settings to reflect the standard keyboard layout French. You may want to use adhesives to indicate which keys are which ones, since the French keyboard is a bit different from the standard American keyboard. Check the computer settings folder to see if this option is available.
