You can send a message to a mobile phone using your computer to access an email account. Open your e-mail account. Create a new email. Type the 10-digit number of the person you want to send a message in the "A" field, followed by the carrier's specific email address (see Resources). For example, if you want to send an email to someone using a phone on the Verizon network that has the number 555-123-4567, you should enter "5 551 234 567@vtext.com" in the "A" field of the email. Compose your text in the "Message" area Most text message from being abbreviated. Click "Send" and your message will be sent to a mobile device as a text message. If the recipient replies, you will receive the text correspondence in your mailbox. Reply to the email you receive to keep sending messages back and forth. By David Nield i Jupiterimages/Photos.com/Getty Images Facebook was created to help you share as much as possible with your friends, so if you're sending a message you want to keep private, it's important to make sure you're only sharing it with the intended recipients. In addition to the one-to-one private conversations you can have through Facebook Chat and Messages, you can also control the audience for messages sent to your timeline or others. Log in to Facebook and click on the link "Messages". Select "New Messages". Start typing the name of the person you want to send a message to. When the correct name appears, click on it to confirm the desired recipient. If you want to send a message to more than one person, add more friends in the same way. Click on the "Write a message to more than one person, add more friends in the same way. input field. Click the "Send" button when the message is ready. The message is added to your conversations with your chosen friends to see. Use the tag, location, and photo buttons under the text box if you want to add people, places, or images to the update. Open the drop-down menu of the audience selector (using the "Post" button) and select "Custom" from the list. Choose Or specification lists⠻From the first drop-down menu and enter the names of the friends you would like to be able to see the post. When the correct name is displayed, click on it. Select «Save Changes» to confirm the post audience, then click «Postâ» to publish the update in the timeline and in in News feed. Because whatsapp allows you to answer and forward messages that disappear. From whatsapp: whatsapp is available on all Android phones and other platforms, and is the default messages that disappear. From whatsapp is available on all Android phones and other platforms, and is the default messages that disappear. service regularly receives new features, and with the disappearance of messaging platform with over a billion users around the world. The light service has everything you can ask in a messaging platform, and its latest functionality allows you to safeguard your privacy. There are few more frustrating things than when trying to send an SMS to the subway and the text does not pass because there is no solid connection. But now, thanks to a new update on the mobile application WhatsApp, you can learn to send offline messages to whatsapp without having to worry about losing your text. Whatsapp released the new offline messaging feature for iOS devices on Tuesday, Jan. 23, which Which you can start sending offline messages as soon as you, well, now. Yes, those of you who use whatsapp on an Android device have already been able to take advantage of this functionality since last summer, but because it does not celebrate the fact that your iPhone using friends will now be able to do the Everyone wins! For those who have friends, relatives or other connections abroad, whatsapp is a popular app; It allows you to easily contact people around the world by sending and receiving texts and phone calls with the simple touch of a button, totally free Å ¢ â,¬ "No international data plan required. Before this new feature, however, It was not possible to send a text without having an adequate connection. The text simply would not have sent to the other person; rather, you sitting in your message box as a letter that has not yet been sealed in an envelope. As an avid of Whatsapp, Wechat and other similar messaging apps, I always find it frustrating when I can't send a message just because I have written important, long answers à ¢ Â, ¬ "just to make them disappear or finish accidentally eliminated because I have minimized whatsapp for too long until I was back above the ground. (Who is with me on this? I can't be the only one here.) It is worth noting, however, that the new function does not really send when there is no connection; What he does, though, is the tail on your message for sending. So once the phone has the service again, the message will automatically send. For the curious, here's what your message should be in whatsapp as once delivered while you have a connection: as you can see, a green check mark as soon as they appear next to your message, indicating that the message was successfully sent to the receiver. But what happens if you don't have a connection? Let's say you're on a plane and your phone is in a plane mode $\tilde{A} \notin \hat{a}$, "but you just remembered that a relative sent you an important message before the flight and you don't want to forget to answer. What happens then? For you. Here's how to send a message to whatsapp even when you're offline. 1Pe your message in the desire of whatsapp sartstarts wanted while you usually send a message to whatsapp by typing your message to the text box. Before the new functionality came Outside, the Little Paper Airplane button would remain gray, indicating that you don't have to worry about losing yours Message 2.Ptap The Blue Airplane ButTonta-from! Since you don't have a long-strong connection, your message does not switch automatically. But instead of a green check mark indicating that your exact message will send once you have a connection again. Awesome, right? 3Monitor The delivery process is another interesting thing: if you slide right on yours You can actually check to see which of your texts has passed to the receiver and that are still on the way to be delivered (not to mention what they have been read, as well). Easy bad, right? Happy SMS! Opinions Reviews From the collaborators of Entrepreneur they are one's own. You are reading the Middle East contractor, an international media entrepreneur franchise. There are some things I find irritating to work, and most of these turn around time. The lack of respect for the time of other people, wasting time through make-work work projects, and above all, pungent with time. For sting I mean that kind of greedy person who wakes up at 9:00 A.M. Sharp and watch out right at 18:00. Or that person who nickel and halves the company for extra hours, it can also be in the form of emotional taxation - as when they raise those extra hours in a voice of the PIPI 'fancy party. Don't misunderstand me, I think everyone has the right to your free time and it's healthy to go out, but when you need to pull a weekend with your team, it's necessary. There are really no two ways to do it. SHUTTERSTOCK I particularly like people who forget that senior positions (and entrepreneurial efforts) require much more than a time commitment than the average administrator position. If you think that put in 10 hours of extraordinary makes you super special, then maybe you should consider a less demanding career. The shift work, as in a fast food restaurant or in a clothing boutique of some kind, could satisfy you better because you set hours and you are not obliged to complete a stack of paperwork and respond to a full mailbox of E- Mail when your turn is over. The superior management work should not be considered in one of those sectors, because those senior positions will require extraordinary as well as the chief and must be obtained. When I was a child, he was taught that those types of industries, service industries were called the tertiary sector. (I'm not sure if this term is still in use.) There is no lack of jobs in those arenas, so the next time you are having a moment â € œPoor meâ €, consider l 'Switch to a Junior customer level service position. Then I think you'll be â € œPoor meâ €, consider l 'Switch to a Junior customer level service position. trying to appease the general public for eight hours in a row. (This is coming from personal experience - I worked long and hard in some service sectors, and I know how difficult it can be pleasure to a crazy customer.) This takes me to my next point: if you don't realize how much You're lucky to have a career, consider people who are blocked by a position like yours due to lack of ability, lack of education or lack of convenient location connections. When I hear people complain about overtime, choke the desire to they are really lucky to have done so far the business scale. Many of these great complaints are dissatisfied; This makes it much harder for me to keep my opinion on myself. I think all this is related to being sloppy and/or lazy. If you are not meticulous in the garty of piety, spend an extra 15 minutes in the office every day, clean up your mess so that no one else is stuck with it, appreciate the fact that someone believed in you enough to appoint to a senior position, just put on the job you are really proud of, and finally, take your ego out of equation and get your unappealing laziness in control. Then you will know, intrinsically, how the dignity feels. How
