Akitas are beautiful and popular dogs. But the Akita dog's temperament should be taken into consideration before taking one into your home, especially âCan Akitas live with other dogs? Akitas cannot live with other dogs naturally as their temperament is more dominant when it comes to other dogs, and they are unpredictable with other animals in general. Rigid training will be needed as it enters adulthood. The Akita is best suited to live in a doghouse and can be a wonderful companion, a protective guard dog, and a loyal family member. But when it comes to mixing with other dogs or cats, it would be best not to leave anything to chance - especially if you're a first time dog owner. Can two Akitas live together? Two Akitas of the same sex should never be left alone together and should be monitored constantly even if raised by puppies. This kind of situation makes for unfair conditions for both dogs should someone try to lift two together. Contest for Dominance It will be a contest of right for dominance, and you are spending more time breaking up fights with two very powerful dogs than you want. Problems of dominance, food aggression, jealousy over attention, toys and other reasons that are known only to the dog, can start a war. Being neutered doesn't make as much a behavioral difference as Akitas go. With other breeds, it can work wonders, but the same rules do not apply to all dog breeds. It may help curb some of that dominant behavior, but not enough to be able to treat it as a dog-friendly breed. A The best (or safer) scenario would be a male and female pair, both neutered, and one is about 18 months to 2 years older than the other. The age gap is for a couple of strategic reasons. The first reason would be that you would experience raising a puppy of Akita and you would get the flavor of what is involved. Raising a cranky puppy can be a handful, let alone multiply it by two. This factor is especially important for owners of Akita dogs first time. The second reason is that you would have a handle on you'd have a handle on you'd have a handle on your dog's first attitude, temperament and tolerance. You'd have seen how he responds to other dogs and you'd have a handle on your dog's first attitude, temperament and tolerance. incoming puppy hitting the scene. After going through the experience of bringing the first puppy into adulthood, having gone through all your personal training, as well as having supervised the dog's training, you will in a better place to make a decision. Female Akitas Do you tend to be less aggressive than male Akitas? Are Akitas females less aggressive than males? No. They are slightly weaker than their male counterparts, but show a dominant behavior on other female dogs such as aggressive towards each other. What about the Other Races? It doesn't matter what the race is when it comes to whether an Akita will be aggressive towards it. Any other race of the same sex will be considered "competition". Is that true for every single Akita out there? No. There are exceptions to the rule with any race. But it would be foolish to assume that you will have everything under control by trying to mix an Akita and other animals in the same house, without some serious problems on your hands. Careful Exercise When it comes to the lives of other pets, it is better to err on the side of caution. An Akita is a powerful dog and can quickly do the work from cats, other small animals, and most dog breeds if you decide to. I'm not trying to paint this race as cold-stone killers. Many people who own Akitas discuss some of these things because their dog is different. Others may agree wholeheartedly I'm saying because of their personal horror stories from trying to mix the K9 company with their Akita. That's the point- it's a mixed bag of behaviors from different individuals. It would be wise to exercise caution and make responsible decisions before taking an Akita pup or getting a four-legged friend for your Akita, All it takes is once there are breeds out there are breeds out there animals. With a breed as strong as an Akita, an event can spell the death of a beloved animal. Japanese Akita Vs. American Akita The American Akita is generally a bit larger than the Japanese Akita, but both share the same general lineage and ancestry. They look slightly different from each other, as the Japanese Akita has a more bulky appearance similar to the bear. Putting aside differences in size and appearance, their temperament remains the same as that of other dogs. Initially they were bred to be great game hunters, as well as guardians. Like most purebreds, the breed will show the nature it was bred to have. Animal-aggressive behaviour is one of those traits that were necessary for hunting purposes. In those days, it was not uncommon for Akitas to hunt and kill bears with only two in number. So, whether it is an American or Japanese Akita, one is no less dominant than the other with regard to behavior. Final thoughts Akita is as cute as a teddy bear when she's a puppy, and grows to be a beautiful fur ball when she's an adult. They are loyal to their owners, loving to their families, and take on the mantle of being the protectors of everything they know and love. They have a proven trail of wonderful family pets in general. But their dominant behavior can turn a family to head down when another animal is introduced. So, please consider all this information if you are interested in collecting alt could save you a lot of pain and anguish recommending (at my level) people who are closely interested in this superb breed. on instagram and many other social media, you can admire this beautiful breed: the aakitas collect today the two races, the aakita inu and the akita because they remain similar despite some small details. These beautiful Japanese dogs make us dream with their presence, beauty and strength ât | in fact, the akitas are incomparable faithful dogs, intelligent with a temperament that approach cats and their attitudes are sometimes very fun. (I'm sure some owners will smile) don't judge a book from its cover! the appearance of the teddy bear can often cause problems for people who do not know the race. Yes, they look like puppies but are not made of marshmallows ^^. like a primitive breed, there are many things to know before buying this kind of dogs. First facts you should know is that akitas are naturally very dominant, barely tolerate other dogs especially of the same sex. a huge socialization of the tender age is extremely important to get used to the dog to tolerate his furriends as best as possible. However, akitas builds their characters after adolescence, a puppy or a young dog who willingly played with his companions can stop this overnight stay and no longer accept contact with them, make sure he can even attack them. This is why it is strongly discouraged to get an akita of the same sex if you already have a dog and if you don't even have the necessary facilities to separate them for life, because the akitas are very resentful, usually if they decided to accept more a dog, it is forever, to avoid abandonment, you must be aware of this risk and not try to change their temperament, those who have already experienced an akita struggle know that it will be very difficult to separate and that it will not be risk-free. Yeah, they're real ninjas! do not think that, since your current dogs are submissive or very sociable, that the aakita that has grown with will will necessarily agree with them throughout his life. manyThey are very surprised and often they don't even know what to do when a fight comes and this is usually very difficult to stop them. A ¢ â, ¬ Å "Pulling the back legs Technical does not really work with Akitas. Keys for success: positive education is essential with them. We provide but do not train an Akita a - | despite the fact that it is not a breed that obeys perfectly, we can achieve very beautiful things through regular work. Personally, I get a great result of obedience with Malcolm who I'm very proud of. He likes to make me happy and he's proof of a successful connection between us. Like all primitives, their hunting instinct is very present. A recall will never be 100% reliable when an Akita decides to go hunting. Many owners use large cords to make them smell and hunt peacefully, but especially safely. You should know that Akitas owners often keep their dogs on a leash because of the risk of crossing other dogs or if they decide to go hunting. They are relaxed without a leash in safe and erased places to see a potential danger. If you have the habit or desire to have a dog without a leash and without limits, you will be disappointed to see that the Akita is not suitable for you. For many owners, the exits are not always just relaxing and their obsession is to cross loose dogs. Most accidents happen this way very often. Codes very different from other Akitas dogs carry their tails and their ears are highly high, their positions return to other dogs - some signs they may interpret as dangerous. Some of them will go up to them, the others with the canine codes were approaching. Shepherd dogs are particularly sensitive to their attitude of Akitaâ, because their dog codes are quite different. After two experiments of my friend Akita The owners "Go with the View of the reserve of my dog with the German shepherds and Akitas, but not only ... Akitas are not often recommended for people who have never owned dogs but personally I think it is sometimes better to be a first time owner Dedicate to the education, socialization of your dog and who feels the desire to learn, rather than someone known about other breeds of dogs and who feels the desire to learn, rather than someone known about other breeds of dogs and who feels the desire to learn, rather than someone known about other breeds of dogs and who feels the desire to learn, rather than someone known about other breeds of dogs and who feels the desire to learn, rather than someone known about other breeds of dogs and who feels the desire to learn, rather than someone known about other breeds of dogs and who feels the desire to learn, rather than someone known about other breeds of dogs and who feels the desire to learn, rather than someone known about other breeds of dogs and who feels the desire to learn, rather than someone known about other breeds of dogs and who feels the desire to learn, rather than someone known about other breeds of dogs and who feels the desire to learn, rather than someone known about other breeds of dogs and who feels the desire to learn, rather than someone known about other breeds of dogs and who feels the desire to learn, rather than someone known about other breeds of dogs and who feels the desire to learn, rather than some dogs are the dogs and who feels the dogs are the dogs tact to handle them, but it can be learned, especially when you are well prepared. For all breeds, research is required before adopting a dog. Meeting of owners, breeders are the best way to know more about them. Ask yourself if you will know how to fulfill the needs of the race. Each of them has specificity that needs to be adapted. In the opposite case, it is better to keep dreaming with your eyes open while watching the photo. Do not even think about changing the instinct and behavior of a primitive, that is why we should not buy a dog for its beauty, there are enough dogs in To minimize abandonment or accidents, it is best to be prepared to meet all these conditions to accommodate a dog like this. Talking about the Akita breed without taboos is important, they are not bloodthirsty monsters, they just need some space with other dogs and just know how to respect it. If you cross an akita during a walk with your dog, it would be best to avoid any problems, to get your on a leash if it is not already done or to have good control over him not to get close to the other dog, unless the owner of akita has not suggested it to you. An extremely wonderful breed As an Akita Lover, I am very happy to discover them a little more every day, because we learn every day a new thing with them. Their behaviors are so interesting and their attitudes often very funny, they are often called cat dogs and this is quite true. The love of an Akita is priceless, on this point I gladly take the example of the legend "Hatchiko." I hope you enjoy this first article dedicated to the Akita breed. Feel free to visit the kennels, meet the owners and send us messages if you have any further questions. See you soon! Statue of Hachiko in Japon
