By VI Staff on March 12, 2022 - Updated Park City, Utah, located about 32 miles from Salt Lake City, is known for its excellent ski resorts and the popular annual Sundance Film Festival. With miles of biking and hiking trails through dense mountain forests, hot springs, and reservoirs, Park City, UT has a lot to offer to outdoors enthusiasts. Here are the best things to do in Park City, Utah. Be sure to call the attractions and restaurants ahead of your visit to confirm current opening times. © Courtesy of Mehmet Dilisiz - Fotolia.com The Park City Main Street Historic District consists of 47 buildings set on 13 acres along Main Street, the business section of Park City, as well as part of Heber Avenue. After a fire in 1898, all the structures were rebuilt in a variety of architectural styles including Queen Anne, Mission/Spanish Revival, and Victorian. Listed on the U.S. National Register of Historic Places, the district represents one of the best examples of a metal mining town in Utah and is one of the best things to do in Park City. The historic buildings now house more than 100 boutiques, 50 restaurants, and many outdoor adventure tour companies. © Courtesy of kldangelo - Fotolia.com Deer Valley is a ski resort 36 miles (58 kilometers) east of Salt Lake City. Deer Valley served as the site of several events for the 2002 Winter Olympics including freestyle moguls, aerial, and alpine slalom. Opened in 1981, Deer Valley is known for its upscale facilities and amenities. These include boutique shopping, fine dining in the main lodge, free parking shuttles, free ski valets, and much more. In order to avoid overcrowding, Deer Valley limits the number of ticket sales per day, and its uphill lift capacity is over 50% more than those of neighboring resorts. 2250 Deer Valley Drive S, Park City, Utah, Phone: 435-649-1000 You are reading "25 Best Things to Do in Park City, Utah" Back to Top Located on Olympic Parkway, Utah Olympic Park is the winter sports park that was built for the 2002 Winter Olympics. It hosted several events during the Olympics, including the bobsledding, luge, skeleton, ski jumping, and Nordic combined events. Olympic athletes still use the park to train. Facilities include the bobsled track, day lodge, mountain coaster, museums, ziplines, and more. Joe Quinney Winter Sports Center houses two museums including the Alf Engen Ski Museum, which contains memorabilia related to the legendary skier, and the George Eccles Salt Lake 2002 Olympic Winter Games Museum, which contains Olympic medals, athletic equipment used during the games, video clips, and more. 3419 Olympic Parkway, Park City, Utah, Phone: 435-658-4200 You are reading "25 Best Things to Do in Park City, Utah" Back to Top © Courtesy of elephotos - Fotolia.com Located at Park City Mountain Resort on Lowell Avenue, Alpine Coaster is the largest coaster of its kind in Utah; it is a gravity-driven coaster built on elevated tracks similar to bobsled tracks. Sometimes reaching speeds of up to 30 mph, the coaster car zips thrill-seekers through more than a mile of bends, hair-pin curves, and loops. The rider is able to control the speed of the car by applying brakes. The track is placed in the beautiful mountain scenery of Park City Mountain Resort so riders can enjoy aspens and other local flora as they glide down the mountain. 1345 Lowell Avenue, Park City, Utah, Phone: 435-649-8111 You are reading "Fun Things to Do in Park City, Utah this Weekend with Friends" Back to Top or More places to see near me today, what to do, weekend trips © Park City Museum Located on Main Street, the Park City Museum, a local history museum with fascinating artifacts and interactive exhibits, is devoted to preserving and exhibiting the heritage and history of Park City. It is part of Utah State Route 190, also known as the Big Cottonwood Canyon Scenic Byway, which runs east and west through Salt Lake County. After passing through Brighton, Guardsman Pass Scenic Backway becomes a narrow mountain road on its way to Park City. There are beautiful fields of wildflowers, forests of aspens, red mountain maples, and evergreen trees, and views of high mountain peaks. Passenger cars are able to make the trip on the dirt and gravel mountain road. © Fletcher's Fletcher's restaurant, lounge and bar is refined and cozy at the same time. It's the perfect place for either a drink after work or for celebrating a wedding anniversary with the love of your life. The décor is beautiful and tasteful, while the food is fresh, healthy, and imaginative. Chef Scott Bohrer is particular about his ingredients, so the beef is grass-fed and the chicken is organic. There are small plates for sharing and big plates for indulging. You can even use their sides as a full meal, because they really are that good. Order a fabulous appetizer like the bacon jam with cheddar chives biscuits to savor before choosing your main dish. And wait until you get to the dessert. 562 Main Street, Park City, Utah, Phone: 435-649-1111 You are reading "25 Best Things to Do in Park City, Utah" Back to Top or Amazing things to do around me & More pictures of fun cheap vacation spots © Courtesy of MnyJhee - Fotolia.com Canyons Village is the former Canyons Resort base area, and it is located on Canyons Resort Drive about four miles from Park City's historic Main Street. Raw wood and charming bistro tables soften the industrial elements, creating a lively and comfortable atmosphere as the background to Chef Matt Harris' inspired cuisine. His modern American fare is influenced by his international travels, and he uses fresh, seasonal, local ingredients to produce exceptional, beautifully presented dishes. Favorites like the Maine crab fritters are served with pepper slices, sweet and sour pickle, and hot sauce, while the braised veal cheeks are served with parsnip puree and the marble potatoes are mixed with a rich bone marrow butter. The wine list is exciting and extensive and the cocktails are imaginative, ensuring that dining at Tupelo will be a memorable experience. 1500 Kearns Blvd, Park City, UT 84060, Phone: 435-615-7700 © Jaffiz A Jaffiz is a sort of hot pocket with two pieces of bread stuffed with savory or sweet filling and grilled in a special "jaffle iron." It looks like a fat disk, and it is easy to hold and eat. The jaffle is very popular in South Africa, where the name comes from, but Aussies claim that they have it too. Why not? The idea is great. There is no limit to what you can put in the filling. And at Jaffiz, they really have some great ideas. You can get anything from Sky High Apple Pie to Braised Short Ribs. The Café is quiet, modern, colorful, and rather small, and since the jaffles are so portable, most people just grab them and go. 7182 Silver Creek Rd, Park City, UT, Phone: 435-333-5233 © Kimball Art Center Kimball Art Center is a visual arts center located on Park Avenue in Park City. Founded in 1976 by Bill Kimball, the center started in a garage and was refurbished in 2001. The center displays works by local up-and-coming artists as well as national exhibits related to history. The museum is known for hosting the annual Park City Kimball Arts Festival, the longest running visual arts festival in Utah. It also offers a variety of education outreach programs, which include art classes for all age groups from preschoolers to adults, Kimball Clay Studio classes, Young Artists' Academy, and more.
