Jul 21, 2021 Version M32.2 - The third part of The Next Generation arc comes with a new ship - The Meridian - and Riker! - The Meridian, a perfect ship for Isogen Mining.- New Epic Officer William Riker.- Four new Ship Refits!- New Territory research nodes!- Faster spawn rates for G3 Armadas.- New Daily Goal: Away Teams Assignments.- New TNG missions: help Riker to free his Enterprise-D crew!- A new Battle Pass & Events.- Four new Avatars and three new Frames!- More bug fixes and behind the scenes changes The game is extremely fun to play and addictive in the beginning it's easy to upgrade and you can pretty much gain all the resources necessary endgame to upgrade but it is a grind my recommendation would be to join a very good alliance from the beginning that supports you teaches you about the insns and outs of the game and even help you gain resources and protect you against bullies in the game because let me tell you this game has lots of bullies in it that constantly attack weaker players one of the things I would add in this gameWould be Easter egg like prizes that would be random of course but would encourage players to stay in and play to try to get these where the prices would be extraordinary allowing them to advance things like 100 hours of speed ups or combination of speed ups big swaths of resources instead of little tiny ones that feed you with a bird dropper people want to advance that is in our nature and if it takes them five weeks just to try to get it shipped to compete less people are going to stay in the game and play but all in all I give it five stars because it is a lot of fun and the possibilities are pretty much endless I gave three stars to star fleet command . One there is no alliances war being conducted with other alliances besides targeting miners with alliances or floating ships with alliance . Secondly the resources take to progress a ship is to long and only event ships are the best power houses. Thirdly the amount of officer exp needed to level them up and promote is to high for the quest rewards because at certain point in leveling the operation building . The fourth thing recruiting new officers or getting them promoted is to hard because can only get one character token . It is uncertain how many each of them need to maxed out . The missions do not recycled to get more officer exp or ship exp . Otherwise this free game for those who like destroying ships with some grind .Do not expect to get officers quicker or level them up quickly, or have any indication if there are more severs that are open to los . This game can benefit by giving alliances more reward systems or give alliances sectors with mines only for that alliance. Other then speed upgrades and the eventual upgrade to do armadas. Low level alliance members can not participate in armadas which means they can not get rewards from it besides reducing the waiting period on upgrades. The last thing mention the roster of characters do not have the crew tag easily identified without having to click on the avatar to find out if they belong in that crew group. I love Star Trek and so I have been excited to jump in and play. I am probably about 30 hours into game play and while I really have enjoyed the concept but definitely missing the mark. There are consistent issues with glitches and bugs. Menus or buttons will break and you won't be able to exit or interact with anything. Notifications will get stuck and you won't be able to get rid of a badge even though you've already acknowledged it. After about level 10 you are able to attack and be attacked by other players. Which would seem exciting except for there are no natural barriers that separates players. So it doesn't matter that you've advanced to a certain level, someone that is 3x your power can easily attack your ship and destroy it. You can also do the same to others. The challenge is if you're trying to complete missions or mine resources it is inevitable that within a few minutes you will be attacked and destroyed. As your ships become more and more powerful it takes longer and longer for them to repair. So get ready to wait 30 minutes to an hour for your ships to rebuild every time you login. I could go on about the things that aren't quite there but this game has wasted enough of my time. Overall, great concept and if you have a week to blow on this game then do it. After that you'll prolly get bored of it like so many other players and delete the app. The developer, Scopely, indicated that the app's privacy practices may include handling of data as described below. Star Trek Fleet CommandDeveloper(s)Digit Game StudiosPublisher(s)Scopely, CBS InteractiveEngineUnity 2018.4.2f1Platform(s)Android, iOSReleaseNovember 29, 2018Genre(s)Role-playing video game, MMOMode(s)Single-player Star Trek Fleet Command is a 4X "explore, expand, exploit, and exterminate" mobile strategy game created by Irish developer Digit Game Studios and published by Scopely and CBS Interactive.[1] Players can explore star systems, build ships, mine resources, level up, complete missions, join alliances and battle other gamers. The game follows the Kelvin timeline[2] from the Star Trek franchise, and includes iconic characters from the series: Kirk, Spock, McCoy, Scotty, Sulu, Uhura, Nero, and more. In the likeness of 2016's Star Trek Beyond, players can collect and upgrade characters and deploy on ships for a RPG role-playing game-style element. Gameplay In Star Trek Fleet Command, players start out with a space station and one ship. They can explore galactic systems, interact with NPCs and other players as well as complete missions. Missions, mining and combat rewards give the player resources used to upgrade their space station and invest in new ships.[3] The combat system is calculated based on turns but occurs in real-time gameplay. It is possible to attack or be attacked by NPC or other players' ships.[3] The game features an alliance system as well as a galaxy, alliance and private chats.[3] There are also events that can reward players with various in-game rewards. The game also includes a variety of in-game purchases ranging from $4.99 to $99.99. It has been characterized as pay to win. Free to play is classified as VERY frustrating past level 14.[4][5] Reception Joe Jordan of Pocket Gamer reviewed the game in 2018 and found "a deep mobile MMOG that combines its licence, metagame and gameplay in a thoroughly enjoyable and engaging manner," giving a final score of 4.5 out of 5.[6] Glenn Wilson of GameZbo gave a score of 4 out of 5.[7] Doug Mercer of COG Connect reviewed the game giving a score of 80% out of 100%.[8] Italian website multiplayer.it gave the game a score of 8.2 out of 10.[9] The game received an 83% according to the review aggregation website GameRankings[10] The game was nominated for "Excellence in Convergence" at the SXSW Gaming Awards,[11] and for "Best Music in a Casual/Social Game" at the 2019 G.A.N.G. Awards,[12] and won the People's Voice Award each for "Strategy/Simulation Game" and "Technical Achievement" at the 2019 Webby Awards.[13] It was also nominated for "Song/Score - Mobile Video Game" at the Hollywood Music in Media Awards,[14] and for "Game of the Year" at the Pocket Gamer Mobile Games Awards.[15] References ^ "WATCH: The Ultimate Fleet Command". Related The popular mobile game Star Trek Fleet Command is getting a big expansion just in time for Star Trek's upcoming birthday. Star Trek Fleet Command bringing together the Kelvin and Prime Universes Today, Scopely and ViacomCBS Consumer Products announced a partnership that gathers every Star Trek timeline under one experience in the award-winning mobile game Star Trek Fleet Command. Launched in 2018, Fleet Command exclusively featured the Kelvin Timeline and characters from the 2009, 2013, and 2016 cinematic Star Trek Universe. Starting in September, the game is infusing new content from the Prime Timeline, including the original Star Trek, Star Trek: The Next Generation-era shows, Star Trek: Enterprise, as well as the new CBS All Access series Star Trek: Discovery and Star Trek: Picard. Fleet Command will be the only mobile game to feature the complete Star Trek Universe. Promo image for Prime expansion of Fleet Command "With over 50 years of content to draw from, this expanded partnership with ViacomCBS Consumer Products marks the first time all of these iconic Star Trek stories, characters, and universes will find a home in one immersive experience," said Steve Huff, Senior Vice President of Product at Scopely. "We're honored to be deepening our collaboration with ViacomCBS Consumer Products and contributing to the legacy of Star Trek through our shared mission of delivering an exceptional experience to fans all over the world, for many years to come." In Fleet Command, players are the commanders of their own destiny: From crew selection to the missions they take on and the alliances they form, choices made in-game will impact how storylines intersect as new content begins to roll out over the coming months. Some of the current Fleet Command characters "Star Trek is a multi-generational franchise that continues to generate new iterations to meet the needs of its ever-growing loyal and passionate fan base," said Pam Kaufman, President, Global Consumer Products, ViacomCBS. "With this first-of-its-kind partnership, we are able to harness the combined power of the beloved brand to give gamers a unique opportunity to create their own new adventures utilizing an exciting title from an exceptional partner like Scopely." Screenshot from Star Trek Fleet Command In its first two years, Star Trek Fleet Command has proven to be very popular. According to Scopely, active players are spending multiple hours in-game each day, and 75% of players are playing seven days per week. The game consistently places in the top rankings for its genre, most recently landing the #1 spot in App Annie's ranking of the most engaging strategy and RPG titles by US-based publishers. More than 5.9 billion battles have been played to date, with a 20% increase in battles played in the last year. In 2019, Scopely recruited Star Trek Into Darkness actress Alice Eve (Carol Marcus) to promote the game, as you can see from one of her Fleet Command videos below. Star Trek Fleet Command is available as a free download on iOS via the App Store and on Android via Google Play. Keep up with all the Star Trek gaming news at TrekMovie.com.
