However, getting the pickaxe and watering can updated is very important as it greatly decrease the time it takes to stretch to your farm and mine ore. Although not profitable enough, it is still great, and if you get lucky, you might find some treasure for for up for it. Making sure you have a decent amount of money set aside to buy crops at the beginning of each season is very important. The other safe time to upgrade is when it's about to rain. One is at the end of a season. They apply for multiple points in the game, so make sure to read them all for beginning ideas, and later game strategies to get wealthy. Anytime you don't have access to it, resort to fishing to make some income as you wait. However, there are better ways to go about it. You will also find various precious gems, or even Diamond, making you even richer on those lucky days. Afterwards, you should head off to the Mines to get some ore to sell, or go fishing to sell off what you catch. However, as your skills increase, the payoffs can begin to shoot up quite rapidly. The Pickaxe is the simpler of the two to upgrade. Money! It makes the world go around. The Watering Can is tougher. This process can be time consuming, as you have to wait several days in some cases, but the end results are always worth it. This will allow you to make a quick buck off your base crops, but also get some higher end products later on. Fishing starts to pay off once you can reliably catch the fish. Spending a whole day fishing can net you multiple thousands of dollars, and potentially other rewards if you're lucky! Simply selling the base products you obtain will be the main way you earn money. If you've found a great way to earn money, let us know down below. Starting off, Mining and Fishing may not seem like profitable ventures. Due to how fast the Hoe works, it's more of a luxury upgrade and not entirely necessary. advertisementHave any tips of your own? 25G Egg can turn into 100G Mayonnaise. Upgrading your tools early is extremely important, otherwise you will be laboring in the fields for far longer than you want. Winter is a great season to catch up on your friendships and other non farming related activities, so don't bad if you're ignoring them during the more productive seasons. This is precious money that instead should be saved for more seeds. Just make sure to water your plants first! 5 pieces of ore becomes a bar, and bars can be sold for a hefty amount of cash. You then get the Watering Can back on Day 1 of the next season, so you can start planting new seeds. advertisementFor mining, the payoffs will occur when you reach floors that have Iron Ore and Gold Ore. Completing the Community Center's Pantry Room Quests will unlock the Greenhouse which will let you plant crops, even in the winter. Once you are floating a comfortable amount of extra gold, somewhere over 10K, then you should consider investing in animals. Using fertilizer on these crops to increase your chances of producing high-quality produce is also a great idea. Once your skill goes up, so too does the size of the bar, making fishing far easier. Check your TV daily, and if it says tomorrow will bring rain then you are safe to upgrade today. It sounds like a silly concept, but the first few levels of fishing can be tough due to the small range of the green bar to catch fish. On day 27, you can send it in for upgrade because watering on Day 28 doesn't matter, since plants will die anyways. So, what's the best way to go about it then? Sell the other 75% the normal way, and then take about 25% of it and set it aside for processing. One of the biggest keys to success in Stardew Valley is to set your priorities correctly. Raising animals is also something that can wait till later in the year. This page is part of IGN's Stardew Valley Wiki guide and details everything you need to know about how to make money in Stardew Valley, including why you should turn your crops and animal products into artisan goods, when to upgrade your tools, and many farming tips. Always start your day by doing your farm work. Berries recently took a hard nerf but that doesn't mean farming still one of the best ways to make money in the game. game.
