Agile Scrum

BROUGHT TO YOU BY ACKLEN / AVENUE

BECOMING AGILE with scrum

Scrum is an Agile framework for completing complex projects. Scrum originally was formalized for software development projects, but it works well for any complex, innovative scope of work. The possibilities are endless.

The Framework

 - Sprint Review
 - Backlog refinement
 - Sprint retrospective
 - Daily scrum meeting
- Artifacts
 - Product Backlog
 - Sprint Backlog
 - Burndown charts
- Roles
 - Product Owner
 - Scrum Master
 - Team

START HERE

Customer

The customer, end users, team and other stakeholders provide requirements to the product owner

Product Owner

The Product Owner has the vision of the product, communicates the priorities and business requirements to the scrum team, creates the prioritized backlog and defines acceptance criteria

Items can be moved depending on the priority, vision or technical state, giving real flexibility in the project's future

Backlog Refinement
The team and product owner discuss the top items on the product backlog. The team is given a chance to ask the questions that would normally arise during sprint planning

Sprint Planning
The team and product owner determine what to complete in the coming sprint

Scrum Master

The Scrum Master is responsible for making sure the team is as productive as possible. Removing impediments to progress, by protecting the team from outside

Daily Meeting
Also known as a daily scrum, a 15-minute time meeting for the software team to sync

Sprint Cycle 1 to 4 weeks

The Team
The team is a group of amazing people with different skills, working together, committed to completing a sprint. The typical scrum team has between five and nine people

Burndown chart
A burndown chart is a visual representation of work to be done in the sprint

Sprint retrospective
A review of what did and didn't go well with actions to make the next sprint better

Sprint Review
The Product Owner delivers business value to the customer through incremental product releases
